

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Nothing Moments

A collaborative project in art, literature, and design organized by:
Steven Hull and Tami Demaree with Annie Buckley and Jon Sueda

Nothing Moments is the newest project of Steven Hull, who has teamed up with Tami Demaree, Annie Buckley, and Jon Sueda for this most ambitious of Hull's projects to date. With nearly one hundred participating writers, artists, and designers, Nothing Moments embraces the disparate fields of visual art, literature, and design.

Nothing Moments consists of twenty-four limited edition books and more than four hundred original drawings. The project expands on the relay-inspired process Hull has explored in previous projects, whereby one artist responds to the written or visual work of another. In Nothing Moments, each book begins with a fiction text authored by a contributing writer. This text is then passed to participating artist who makes drawings in response to the story. Finally, the text and art are given to a designer who creates a unique design for each book. The resulting series emphasizes a fusion of writing, visual art, and design, inverting the traditional foregrounding of text over art in the book format.

Nothing Moments offers an intriguing cross-pollination of the populist sensibility of a book fair with the rarified atmosphere of contemporary art. In celebrating the blurring of boundaries between disciplines, the project energizes the gallery with its collective participants and introduces dynamic questions into contemporary critical discourse.

Nothing Moments will debut in October 2007 in Los Angeles with an exhibition at Steve Turner Contemporary and a book launch at MOCA at the Pacific Design Center. The full exhibition, including books and drawings, will then travel to venues in San Francisco, Dallas, and Chicago with additional venues to be announced.
